BUFFALO HILL NOTES

The dance held at the Buffalo School Friday, Oct. 23rd, was quite a success, judging by the good attendance, coupled with the frequent enquiry—when will the next one be? Watch for announcement later.

Mr. and Mrs. Hirst Goldthorpe were Calgary visitors last week end. Hirst is planning a trip north to Bruton with his truck this week and expects to stay for a few days.

Mrs. Lamont, of Ottawa, aunt of Mrs. James Wyatt, has been visiting at the Wyatt home and also with her sister, Mrs. Lawson of Lomond. Mrs. Lamont commented on the fine weather here compared with the rain and dampness at Ottawa.

All the wild game has not been cleaned out of this district is shown by the following: Last Friday a large coyote was started up by Harry Maloney's hounds on Hirst Goldthorpe's land, east of Buffalo School. The coyote, hotly pursued by the hounds, was chased across the Bert Starling homestead and as the dogs were gaining on him he took refuge in the blacksmith shop. Mr. George Starling closed the door and ended the coyote's struggle with a 22 rifle.

Rugby Notes

The highly rated Vulcan Rugby team took a tumble to the Arrowwood Squad when Arrowwood invaded Vulcan Monday and returned home victorious by a 23-0 score. The local boys had the southerners going all through the game, keeping the play well into Vulcan territory. Spectacular tackling by Kenneth Vancil and Horne Leith took Vulcan for losses, as they gained yards a few times. Lloyd Irwin displayed great speed and ability when he made a run of about 50 yards before being downed. Casey Norton, star quarterback, also gave a few pointers on the art of side stepping and dodging when he carried the ball through the heavy Vulcan team from the centre of the field to the Vulcan goal line for a touchdown. Arrowwood completed three out of five forward passes. Darkness made it necessary to call the game at the end of the third quarter.

The strongest Gleichen team to be fielded this year opposed Arrowwood in Gleichen Wednesday, but met with defeat by a 22-0 score. Gleichen, with the aid of about 4 bigger and more experienced men, showed an improvement in their style and manner of play. Arrowwood completed 3 out of 5 forward passes. Ed Levanodon taking two of these in success.

Respected and Beloved Pioneer Passes

James Edwin Ward was born in South Carolina, Aug. 11, 1858 and passed away at Arrowwood Oct. 23, 1936.

Mr. Ward moved to Ontario in 1878 where he married Margaret Thildred in 1885. To this union were born five children, four of whom survive (Alma Burgess of Vulcan, Sidney deceased, Beatrice Underhill of Crossfield and Milton and Walter, well known residents of Arrowwood).

Mr. Ward came to Alberta in 1904 to look up a location and moved with his family in 1905, locating 17 miles south of Arrowwood. Here they lived until 1921, when they came to the Arrowwood district. Mr. Ward, V.C.D., came the Homesteaders, who found in Mr. Wards home a centre of helpfulness in many ways, as his fumes, bins, stacks and stock furnished that which was so much needed by the early settlers and was so hard to obtain.

From Mr. Wards home the nearest supply stations were High River on the West, Medicine Hat on the East and Gleichen on the north, so Mr. Wards home soon became not only a stopping place but a home to those who were travelling to some supply station. This meant a trip of days, and often in cold or stormy weather. Those people found at Mr. Wards a free hotel and livery service and Mrs. Ward's ability as cook and hostess will long be remembered by the old timers of this district.

May the spirit of the Pioneers Abide for fortunate is the country where this spirit not pass with the early pioneers.

Many expressions of appreciation and respect for Mr. Ward have lately been heard and the sympathy of this community for the relatives and friends is deep and sincere.

The funeral was held in the Church of the Brethren at Arrowwood on Monday at 1 p.m. in charge of Rev. J. N. Wilkinson of Gleichen, with the United and Brethren Church Choir and a duet by the Misses Grace and Ruth Brubaker. Interment in Burnside Cemetery, Calgary. Jacques Funeral Home was in charge of funeral arrangements. Paulbearers were: R. R. McBride, C. McIrvine, A. H. Tharle, A. L. Lograham, C. Steiner and A. J. Kauffman.

The World of Wheat

By H. G. L. Stranges, Director of "Crop Testing Plan"

The wealth, welfare and prosperity of farmers, and indeed of all of us, in Western Canada depend mainly upon the sale each year to foreign countries of large quantities of Canadian wheat at satisfactory prices.

Between 200 and 300 million bushels a year, it seems to me, will have to be exported if a reasonable standard of living for our producers and other people is to be assured.

Our large annual sales in the past have depended upon the buyers in no less than 72 different countries demanding or wanting Canadian wheat. Our problem, then, can be stated very simply. It is that some one should induce the buyers of 72 countries to "want" between 200 and 300 million bushels of Canadian wheat each year, and to pay a reasonable price for it. Can this be done?

Yes, I at least believe it can. Provided for one thing that we maintain, and if possible increase, the present margin of quality or "strength" that Canadian wheat enjoys over the "strength" of all other wheats in the world. But we must remember that meanwhile other countries are steadily improving the quality of their own native wheats. Therefore Canada will undoubtedly have to increase the efforts she is now making in order even to maintain her present superiority in wheat quality.

The recent substantial increase in the price of wheat has been brought about by the complete disappearance of the "burdensome" world surplus that has tended so to depress world price since 1930. Rainfall that may occur in Australia and the Argentine in the next few weeks is the most important factor now governing world prices. If abundant rains occur the world price of wheat will probably fall. If generous rains do not soon fall, however, the price will probably rise still further. The Buenos Aires "Futures" market for the moment is an excellent price barometer.

"Ah!" Her eyes blazed with blood. In that moment she was all lightning spirit. She struck him stinging across his hard young face.

Then they were standing there, their bodies tense with anger. Scant inches between them, and their faces glaring at each other, like two who have begun a feud to the death. The marks of the girl's fingers showed white against the man's tanned cheeks.

The thin hard line of his jaw marked his determination. He meant to win. He said, still in that harsh voice, "You back out now!"

"I won't let you back out now! You've started this thing and you've got to go through with it. Do you suppose I'm going to allow you to make a fool of me before everybody?"

Start's throat was aching and "Ah!" by "everybody" he meant Stephanie of course. The little sphinx-eyed blond was all he cared about. This whole mad affair was being played for her—for Stephanie who had twice cruelly insulted Start!

She hurried at him bitterly: "You don't care what you do to a woman, do you? You don't care if the whole world thinks she's—she's—" Oh, you know what she's—she's!"

His lips curved contemptuously. "Getting rather particular all of a sudden, aren't you? It occurs to me you may not always have been so careful of your spotless reputation."

He laughed, with no trace of humor. "And you! I thought you wanted to play?" You said so. "I've raised you from obscurity and given you a chance a million other girls might have jumped at. I've given you power—I'll know how to use it!"

curious feeling swept through Start. Yes, that was true. He had given her power, of a sort. But she was letting it slip away from her because of forbidden emotions. If he could really be the hard, scintillating siren he wanted her to be!

A little while ago she had likened herself to a puppet dancing on the end of a string. It struck her now that she had turned the tables at last. She could be the one handling the strings. She could make all these people dance for her; Stephanie, Lance, even the arrogant Michael. Especially Michael!

A savage joy shook her at the thought of making things even with Michael. In the moment when she hated him! A wild, primitive passion of hate that would have done credit to the daughters of the desert, when she was synthetically enured through her slight body.

Her smile flashed into his angry frown. The mocking, painted smile that was essentially the trademark of the notorious "Play-Girl," the supposed part-Egyptian house heritings it was to lure.

"All right, Michael-Hassan. I'll go through with it," she said. "I'll play! Perhaps when I'm finished you'll be sorry that you asked me!"

Start Ellison did not leave her debut party on St. Lawrence had thought perhaps might be her intention. Instead, she burst on the throng gathered to do her a curious sort of homage with new energy and vigor. There was no reason for Starty to pull the strings. Starty danced. She could not keep still. Her flying feet played all over the great ballroom and she was the centre of every group where there was any particular excitement.

It was while the merriment was at its height, and the blasé newsmen who had dropped in were being surprised that it was not "just another party thrown for a would-be celebrity" that she sang for them all. A song of Araby, a desert song of the empty ages of them had ever heard. One of the consensus of opinion was that it must be "one of those tribal songs that had come down through the centuries, my dear."

She sang it to her own accompaniment, playing the harp when she pre-empted it from its owner in the orchestra. Michael's eyes widened when he saw her. Another accompaniment. God, that girl was a continual surprise. Where had she ever learned all the things she knew? He was beginning to wonder about her a little, in spite of having told her he had no interest in her save from the moment of meeting her.

As she sang, she sang "made" the papers the next day, along with an account of the debut party of "Play-Girl."

SERVICES MADE POSSIBLE

Because a Province-Wide System Serves You

EVEN the smallest village connected with this province-wide power system has electrical energy available every moment of the day and night.

Surplus water power capacity interconnected with steam plants and a network of power lines, all of which are operated and maintained at a high standard of efficiency, make electrical energy available instantly and economically.

The operation of the Company's system requires a skilled technical staff, and in addition, local managers who are located at many points throughout the Province. Facilities are thereby available through which the Company provides consumers of electricity with the best solutions of their electrical problems, and acquaints them with the latest developments in equipment and appliances. This service enables our customers to obtain from the electricity used the best results at the least cost.

Jon, the second paying the way clear for a touchdown. The locals had several boys on the injured list, so were a little scanty in planning plays that would succeed at Gleichen week points. The Arrowwood line held Gleichen back while Vancil and Leith again put on a tackling net, although this was not quite as spectacular as in Vulcan. Don Swain and Roy Sharpe handled the Umpires and Referees duties.

Practically all the Arrowwood boys are battle-scarred, sprains and dislocations, fingers, ankles and knees fortunately being the most serious damages so far.

We regret to report that John Irwin has been forced to rely on crutches to get about since the injury to his knee while playing in Vulcan Monday. We hope he will be able to discard crutches and play again soon as he is a valuable man in the field.
